CALGARY'S NEED FOR SPEED

Rows of cars and their drivers are seen in a northeast Calgary parking lot for what has become a weekly meet-up during the summer. From here, some will break off to isolated areas of the city to race their cars at speeds of over 200 km/h. More coverage, page 8-9. METRO

Hantavirus case prompts warning from Alberta Health Services

Alberta health officials are warning Albertans to take precautions after a confirmed case of Hantavirus in northern Alberta.

Hantavirus Pulmonary Syndrome is contracted when a human comes in contact with urine or feces from an infected rodent. The virus easily becomes airborne when mouse nests or their droppings are disturbed.

Hantavirus is rare but can be deadly. Those infected show symptoms including fever, body aches, chills, abdominal problems and severe breathing problems.

Alberta Health Services advises people to learn about the proper cleaning procedure before cleaning up dead mice, their nests or droppings. METRO

Alberta to raise minimum wage Sept. 1 to $9.75

Alberta is to raise its general minimum wage to $9.75 per hour on Sept. 1.

The 35-cent increase will mean the province will have the second lowest rate in Canada.

The minimum wage for people who serve liquor will remain at $9.05.

The Alberta government is trying to put its minimum wage in a positive light, saying when you factor in the province's tax rates, it is the second highest in Canada.

But the Alberta Federation of Labour says that statement is twisting the truth, noting the province has one of the highest cost of living in the country. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Theatres feel pinch

Crunch. Lack of performance and rehearsal space, soaring rent hurt Calgary's creative side, say organizers

jeremy.nolais@metronews.ca

No one is closing the curtain for good just yet, but Calgary theatre groups say it is becoming increasingly difficult to rehearse and perform locally.

"Calgary is supposed to be the cultural capital of Canada this year, people are thinking about what makes our vibrant community, our mayor has been talking about that, too," said David van Belle, co-artistic director for Ghost River Theatre. "Yet our cultural institutions, especially ones that are mid-sized ... our options for production become smaller and smaller."

Ghost River is not alone, as fellow performance group Green Fools Theatre is soon to be evicted from its performance space and others are also feeling a financial pinch.

In fact, the very dilemmas faced by such groups help spur the creation of cSPACE Projects, a local artspace-development initiative spearheaded by Reid Henry, formerly of Calgary Arts Development.

cSPACE is working to develop a network of rehearsal and small-performance spaces, Henry said, with their flagship being a redevelopment of King Edward School into a multi-disciplinary arts incubator of sorts.

"It's not like nothing's going on, but it certainly doesn't address the sort of crisis a lot of these theatre companies are in now," he said. "We are certainly sympathetic to that and trying to accelerate these projects as best we can."

Van Belle said he would like to see more support from municipal and provincial levels of government.

But Brad Walker with local promotional group Bottom Line Productions Inc. says even the fact that Calgary as a whole is recognizing the struggles of small-time performance operations is an encouraging sign.

"This would have never happened five years ago," he said, adding the city is now seen as a "hotbed" of creative talent.

"Calgarians love the arts,

Rent struggle

- Problems began for city performance groups when three low-rent theatres in Inglewood were shuttered, explained David van Belle with Ghost River Theatre.
- It can cost a group like Ghost River up to $10,000 to rent a city venue for a two-week run of performances — that's up to double the rate charged a few years ago.

they come out in full force," Walker added.

Mulcair takes a tour of 'extraordinary' oilsands

Tom Mulcair toured Alberta's sprawling oilsands on Thursday, saying he was left agog at the size of the operations but also with a renewed determination to make sure it all gets cleaned up.

"These are extraordinary undertakings on a human scale. I mean they're massive," the federal NDP leader said at the Alberta legislature in Edmonton after his trip.

"We were able during the helicopter part to really take in a vast vista of what was being accomplished.

"It's extraordinarily impressive. But it also brings with it real challenges that if we don't assume in this generation we're going to bear in future generations."

He positioned himself as one with Alberta and Premier Alison Redford on the need to develop the oilsands in a responsible way.

Tom Mulcair was reportedly agog at the size of the oilsands.

JOHN ULAN/THE CANADIAN PRESS

"I think your premier and I might be on the same page when I hear the idea of a greener energy infrastructure for the future," he said.

But he has not been on the same page, perhaps not even in the same book, as Redford and other western provinces in recent weeks.

The two sides have swapped public insults and condemnations after Mulcair stated that the booming resource sector, particularly the oilsands, are driving up the Canadian dollar and thereby hurting the manufacturing sectors of central Canada — an economic phenomenon known as "Dutch disease."

Redford, Saskatchewan Premier Brad Wall and British Columbia Premier Christy Clark called Mulcair's comments divisive and poorly thought out.

Mulcair, in turn, dismissed the premiers as "messengers" of Prime Minister Stephen Harper.

More charges were laid on Thursday against two young adults, as police allege a plot involving credit-card skimming and possession of child pornography has thickened.

Curtis Douglas Keller and Amanda McHugh de Bakker, both 19 and from Calgary, face nearly 140 charges.

The pair were previously charged in November.

"This is one of the largest credit-card-skimming cases we have been involved with in the Calgary Police Service," Staff Sgt. Frank Cattoni said.

"It's quite an elaborate setup. You have to be pretty tech-savvy."

Police displayed false credit cards in various stages of production along with a number of computers and other technology they say was involved in the skimming process.

Investigators learned of Keller's alleged ties to the skimming operation while looking into possible links between him and other crimes. He frequently uses two aliases, Victor Frolov and James Davidoff.

Police believe credit-card information was obtained by the alleged fraudsters through a website based in Eastern Europe as well as by going through the mail of residents living in a condominium building in the 0-100 block of Millrise Drive Southwest.

Police are asking any residents who live or have lived in the complex, and who may have had their identification or credit card compromised, to call Crime Stoppers.

Keeping tabs on taxis. Open-data decision could create opp for local app

City council's decision to require GPS data from taxis be made available could open the door for tech-savvy entrepreneurs, according to a Calgary app guru.

On Monday, new regulations were approved by city officials in order to keep tabs on how many taxis are in various areas of the city and at what times during the day.

Mayor Naheed Nenshi who advocated for the changes said the open data creates opportunities for business people in the city.

"Could you have entrepreneurs use this data to mix it and mash it to create apps? Absolutely," he said.

Connor Turner of YYC Apps agreed and said he expects the data will be utilized right away when it's made public.

"We've seen there are four of five really good apps that come out when the city releases data in an open space," said Turner, pointing to parking apps in addition to multiple transit apps.

"It could also help to spur innovation within the taxi companies themselves."

WHY I'M FAKING BIEBER FEVER

IN DEFENCE OF
Mike Morrison

Five years ago, I made the biggest mistake of my life.

It was while I was at the Tequila nightclub to see a relatively unknown artist named Lady Gaga. She had recently released a song called Just Dance and was in town to open for the Backstreet Boys at the Saddledome.

Afterwards, she had her own small show at the club on 17th Avenue. It was a Tuesday night and while my friends and I were in the mood to party, our mood quickly turned when Gaga still hadn't taken the stage by 1:30 a.m., and we decided to leave. (I mean, it was a weekday, after all.) Since then, missing that concert has been one of my life's biggest regrets.

In this day and age, if you can't tweet, Facebook or blog about something, then what are you left with? Memories, I guess, but really, not much.

If I really thought about it, am I really upset that I missed Lady Gaga? Nope, not really. But would people think I was cool if I had photos of when she was performing at a small club in Calgary? Absolutely. As someone who lives in this social media-infused era, it's definitely a missed opportunity.

And it's that exact missed opportunity that is motivating me to buy tickets to Justin Bieber's upcoming Calgary show when they go on sale today. Sure, Bieber's status is a little bigger than when Gaga was performing at small clubs — he'll likely sell out the Saddledome in hours.

But as much as hipsters and surly radio DJs wish he would go away, I don't think Justin Bieber is going anywhere. Now, let's get one thing straight. I'm not a fan of Justin Bieber's music, I don't even own a single one of his songs, but I've grown to respect the guy.

He supports Canadian artists like Carly Rae Jepsen; he's in a fully-functional relationship, and, by all accounts, he works hard. The people who criticize him can't even say that about themselves. If I had a kid, I'd totally want him to idolize Bieber.

So now is my chance to make amends for me missing out on the Lady Gaga concert and the bragging rights that could have come with it. If I can get tickets, snap a few shots, then post them on any iPhone app that will let me, it will probably feel great. At least until the next big concert is announced.

Education. CBE aims to release final fee model next week

jeremy.nola@metronews.ca

Time is running short to draft a fee model for Calgary public schools this fall, and officials admit not every parent will be pleased with the final result.

Still, the Calgary Board of Education has put forth a model more focused on user pay that will see majority of families pay less in fees next year; however, some — most notably those with children enrolled in alternative programming — will see dramatic increases to their bill, up to 72 per cent in some cases.

Spokesperson Richard Peter conceded that a formal fee model needs to be approved in short order — officials hope to make a formal announcement next week. He did say, however, that the CBE made a conscientious choice to opt for quality discussion over a quick decision.

"Different parents bring a completely different lens to this (fee discussion)," Peter said.

Parent Jennifer Andrews was in attendance for the final

Feedback

- Members of the media were not allowed into the parent discussions on fees; however, it appears no formal fee model was set at the final meeting Thursday night.

"What some people are saying is not only should specialized programs be offered, but the cost to send your kids to them should also be covered," she said. "That's not right."

Vida. Affordable housing option opened in Calgary

Calgary Housing Company has introduced a new operating model that will see renters sustaining the building.

Recently, tenants have begun moving into a new condo building called Vida, which will adopt a tiered rental system within the building.

"This is a mixed-income model," said Calgary Housing Company general manager, Rick Farrell. "It's sustainable in every sense of the word."

Farrell explained the $12 million in capital funding was covered by the City of Calgary and the province but the operating costs will be paid by the tenants themselves.

Rents will range from around $350 or $400 per month for a one-bedroom to $1,000 depending on the income bracket of the tenant, with higher rents subsidizing lower rents.

The city's Gail Sokolan said the addition of new affordable units will contribute to housing the approximately 4,000 households on Calgary Housing's wait list.

"It adds 45 units to Calgary Housing Company's stock," she said. "It's about 18% of Calgary's population that is in need of affordable housing."

Vida was originally meant to be a for-market condo building in 2007 but as a result of economic downturn the project didn't proceed after development permits were approved.

Zero tolerance. School's out for Edmonton teacher

Edmonton Public Schools superintendent Edgar Schmidt refuted claims Thursday that a school assessment practice not allowing teachers to give a zero mark to students actually sets them up for failure — by not allowing a teacher to give a zero score for zero effort.

The remarks came on a day when the public became aware of the indefinite suspension of Lynden Dorval, a science teacher at Ross Sheppard High School who was recently removed from his post for giving students a grade of zero when they didn't hand in assignments.

"Giving a zero is a judgement on work that isn't done," said Schmidt. "I think it's more fair and transparent to say, 'you haven't done the work — show me what you know.'"

In an interview with CBC radio Thursday, Dorval said the assessment model, implemented at Ross Sheppard about 18 months ago, doesn't hold students accountable. While he gave students opportunity to finish work, in the end he'd give a "reluctant zero," a policy his students were aware of, he said.

Edmonton Public Schools superintendent Edgar Schmidt defends the EPSB. LUCY HAINES/FOR METRO

Local Twitter, Facebook and phone-in comments show it's an issue hitting a nerve with parents and students.

"Giving a zero is just plain unfair," said Ross Sheppard student Brieann Baldock.

But another comment echoed numerous sentiments on social media Thursday. "What mark is he supposed to give them? He can't give them an E for effort."

Dorval has 21 days to appeal his suspension.

Racing on city streets fuelled by track's absence: Drivers

Street racers and spectators gathered on Venture Avenue on Calgary's outskirts earlier this month. Those familiar with the local racing scene say since Race City Motorsport Park closed, more drivers are turning to rural and city roads to race. METRO

Danger. Only a matter of time until someone is killed, say those witnessing weekly exploits

jeremy.nolais@metronews.ca

A quarter-mile to victory.

Engines revved, two white sports cars pull up to the starting line.

The track is cleared and it's pedal to the metal.

Fuelled by the steady hum of high-powered engines, cheers ripple from a few dozen onlookers; beer, coffee and energy drinks are the beverages of choice.

Flirting with speeds between 200 and 250 km/h, the roadsters zip across the finish line at the end of a dark southeast Calgary straightaway.

Race over, the cars return to a lot near the starting line and two new combatants prepare for a showdown.

A scene from the movie Fast and the Furious? No. Participants and spectators alike said it happens weekly on roads in and around Calgary. They said the local street racing scene bur-geons in the absence of Race City Motorsport Park.

"It's dangerous, anything could pop up," says Kenny, a 19-year-old ex-street racer.

He was caught doing 120 km/h in a residential zone last year and was forced to give up his racing ways; however, he and his underage girlfriend still head out on summer Saturday nights to a northeast Calgary parking lot, to kick tires with other car enthusiasts.

More than 100 people turned up to a recent gathering; vehicles mustered in ranging from decades-old muscle cars to newer model Toyotas, Nissans and Chevys. Some come complete with features straight out of Hollywood — rear-spoilers, under-carriage lights and nitrous-oxide injection systems.

Nine months after the final checkered flag at Race City, Kenny and more than dozen other car enthusiasts approached at the parking lot meetup say they are beginning to see more drivers take the risk of racing their souped-up rigs on city roads not fit for such speeds.

"Closing it (Race City) was a kick in the face," Kenny said. "We need a track like that here, the racing is only going to get worse."

Rumours suggest a new track location has been selected and a public announcement is expected sometime this summer.

Construction of a new venue can't come soon enough for speed junkies like 27-year-old Brian, who recently moved to Calgary from Vancouver, where police clamped down on street racing after a passenger was struck and killed during a downtown race.

"People are going to get itchy (to race) as summer goes on," he said. "I know I'm kind of itchy — I'm going to want to race somebody at some point."

By the numbers

60 Data provided by a University of Alberta urban traffic specialist indicates that a pedestrian or cyclist struck by a vehicle travelling at 60 km/h or more only has a 10 per cent chance of surviving. At higher speeds, that percentage falls to zero.

316K Calgary police slapped motorists with 316,000 speeding tickets in 2011. That number is nearly double what law enforcement in Canada's biggest city, Toronto, handed out.

10K In 2010, British Columbia adopted a new legislative policy that allows police to automatically seize and impound vehicles caught travelling more than 40 km/h over the posted speed limit. To date, the policy has been put into action nearly 10,400 times. Transportation Minister Ric McIver recently expressed support for adopting a similar policy in Alberta.

32 Generally, there are 32 "conflict points" or areas of risk for vehicles travelling through a city intersection. Studies indicate the higher the speed of a vehicle passing through such an area, the more likely it is to be involved in a collision.

safe to cross the road, not expecting a vehicle travelling at twice or three times the speed limit."

At high speeds, drivers are also forced to make more refined movements, as a slight jerk of the steering wheel could throw a vehicle off-course and lead to a potentially fatal incident, warns Karim El-Basyouny, an urban traffic safety specialist with the University of Alberta.

"The distance needed to stop increases and the time available for stopping or taking evasive action diminishes rapidly," he added.

Compounding the street-racing problem is social media. Watterston said many racers will issue a single message online and a group will gather to race literally minutes later.

Officers routinely monitor known race hotspots and will frequently stop by gatherings of vehicle enthusiasts to ensure equipment is in working order.

But more importantly, Watterston said, prevention of dangerous racing can begin on the home front, noting many street racers appear to be young adults or minors.

"If you're a parent and you see your child has a modified vehicle ... ask questions," he said.

While the owner of this car claims he doesn't use it to race, many of those who do come complete with stylish features, including neon interior-lighting, flashy rims and fuel-injection systems built to boost speed. METRO

Recent Saturday night

A street race is born

Around 9 p.m., dozens of vehicles begin converging in the parking lot of a north-east Calgary coffee shop.

People gather to talk shop, perform maintenance on their prized autos and sip coffee. As the night wears on, alcohol becomes more common and bravado stirs up the occasional spat.

Police patrols attend hourly to check licences and monitor the activities of those in attendance.

Around 11 p.m., a small cohort of vehicles subtly pulls out of the parking lot, which by now is filled with at least 80 cars and twice as many people.

One group heads down Barlow Trail at speeds well over the legal limit, then heads east on Glenmore Trail. A winding road eventually brings them to an industrial park area and the racetrack for the evening: Venture Avenue.

Participants again climb out of their cars, and race challenges ensue. The stage is set. A car heads down to the end of the avenue to mark a makeshift finish line and one person heads to the starting line to officiate.

Spectators watch, some with beers in hand, others smoke tobacco and marijuana. Most appear to be between 18 to 24 years old. Drag-style races begin but are interrupted routinely by oncoming trucks, whose drivers aggressively honk their horns. The races roll on for an hour before the crowd dissipates. JEREMY NOLAÏS/METRO

Throwing out an AED lifeline

Critical minutes.

Alberta Health Services to distribute 120 new defibrillators as part of the Public Access to Defibrillation program

DE MUELENAERE
calgary@metronews.ca

Calgarian John Lester experienced first-hand the importance of having a defibrillator nearby when it was needed.

In March, Lester's heart went into cardiac arrest after a hockey game. While his teammates and staff administered CPR, an arena manager located the on-site automated external defibrillator, attached it to Lester with instructions from the 911 dispatcher and shocked the non-beating heart back to life.

Alberta Health Services' EMS has launched a new provincial registry for AEDs that will increase access to devices during cardiac medical emergencies.

The registry allows 911 dispatchers to help callers locate AEDs and those trained to use the devices more readily, potentially saving critical minutes following cardiac arrests.

As part of the Public Access to Defibrillation (PAD) program 120 new AEDs will be distributed throughout the province, with training camps on maintenance and proper use of the equipment being organized by the Heart and Stroke Foundation.

"I think it's going to open people's eyes to the good things to having them in public facilities," Lester said.

PAD co-ordinator John Heim demonstrated how AEDs work and said that the future goal is for an AED registry smartphone app that will accelerate the locating of defibrillators during crucial life-saving minutes across Alberta.

Milestone. Library set to celebrate centennial with synchronized block parties

Calgary's getting older — the city is celebrating several milestones, including the centennial of the public library.

While the library has marked birthday celebrations in the past, this is the first time every branch will be holding synchronized celebrations this Saturday.

"This is very much a forward-thinking thing," said April Ganger, assistant marketing manager for the CPL.

"We're a foundational institution in the founding of Calgary and Calgary's development, but we've evolved from an institution where information was scarce; now it's abundant, even via less so much a collection of printed materials more into e-content and different forms of media."

She pointed out no women or children used to be allowed in libraries, but today they're buzzing with life, a hub for families and leisure.

Each branch is having their own "block party" with entertainment and other activities from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., but the official cake-cutting will take place at the Signal Hill branch at 1 p.m., with all levels of government in attendance.

Being the centennial, Ganger said they're tipping their hat to the past, but looking forward to what the future holds.

"We've hit a crest in where we're going and we're really looking forward to our next century of service."

Man dead at the scene

City cops investigate undetermined death

Calgary Police were investigating an undetermined death Thursday morning.

Police were called to a home in the 200 block of Pinecrest Crescent Northeast around 9:50 a.m. after receiving reports of an unresponsive man inside the home.

According to police, the man was dead at the scene.

An autopsy is being conducted to determine the cause of death and to help confirm the man's identity. METRO

Freon leak forces downtown evacuation

The Calgary Fire Department's hazardous materials team responded to a freon leak in the city's southwest Thursday morning.

Hundreds were evacuated from the cafeteria of First Alberta Place, 777-8th Avenue Southwest after around 30 pounds of freon was leaked.

The substance is used in refrigeration and AC systems and can cause severe respiratory problems. One male who did not show any symptoms was taken to hospital as a precautionary measure. METRO

Seattle still in state of shock over killings

City mourns. Slaying frays nerves in city jittery from nearly two dozen homicides this year thus far

Someone inside an artsy café where a gunman opened fire threw stools at the assailant during a shooting rampage police described as “callous, horrific and cold,” a move that allowed others to run to safety.

Ian Lee Stawicki was armed with two .45-calibre handguns and began shooting Wednesday morning

Father's statement

“I just hope they understand he wasn't a monster out to kill people.” Walter Stawicki, father of the alleged gunman at Café Racer, killing four people. Police said he fled and later killed a female motorist, taking off with her SUV.

Stawicki later killed himself as police closed in.

Police said more could have been injured or even killed at the café were it not for the actions of the man, whom they did not identify. They did not say whether he was a patron or an employee.

“The hero picked up a stool and threw it at the suspect. Hit him. Picked up another stool, as the suspect is shooting and now pointing (a gun) at him and hits him with another stool,” assistant police chief Jim Pugel said.

“During that time, two or possibly three people made their escape,” he said, adding, “He saved three lives.”

The slayings further frayed nerves in an already jittery city that has seen 21 homicides so far this year, as many as Seattle had in all of 2011. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Former nationalist opposition leader Tomislav Nikolic was inaugurated as Serbia's new president Thursday.

He blasted his pro-European Union predecessor for the country's deep economic and social problems further fuelling political turmoil after his surprise election.

JOE LOFARO

Montreal police say crime-scene evidence suggests a man suspected of dismembering a human body and mailing parts of it from Montreal to Ottawa has fled Canada.

The nationwide arrest warrant for Luka Rocco Magnotta, 29, was expanded Thursday after his photo and description appeared on Interpol's most-wanted list.

Montreal police Cmdr. Ian Lafrenière would not confirm or deny reports that Magnotta may have headed to Europe.

"We do have some evidence that we found on the scene and also that person left a note on a website (describing) how to leave without getting caught," said Lafrenière.

An article on DigitalJournal.

com, titled "How to completely disappear and never be found" and penned by someone of the same name as Magnotta, explains how to leave without a trace using a six-step method.

"Cut personal ties with everyone who knows you," the article reads.

It goes on to say, "The most important thing to remember here is to accomplish this slowly: Pull out too abruptly and your friends and associates will become immediately suspicious."

Meanwhile, police are trying to yank videos off of the Internet, which they believe show the suspect committing the murder and other perverse acts on the body.

Police are still investigating the video, but Lafrenière said they "have no reason to doubt its authenticity."

Police believe the victim is a man in his 30s reported missing several days ago, whose family lives overseas. Lafrenière said police were still working out the forensic details and were also having trouble contacting the victim's family.

WITH FILES FROM THE CANADIAN PRESS

Murder video

Voyeurism a human impulse: Prof

An online video that may depict the murder and dismemberment of a Montreal man is horrifying, but the written comments below it are just as appalling.

Some online commenters exchanged causal critiques of the video's soundtrack and its apparent lack of blood.

Like many people, Carleton University sociology Prof. Craig McFarlane doesn't plan on watching the video associated with the body-parts investigation in Montreal.

The media attention the video has received can arouse curiosity and someone who normally wouldn't visit a gore site might be tempted to explore it. McFarlane said those people are only engaging in their own natural curiosity to see violence and gore.

The fascination with brutality and gore, he said, is linked to the fact humans evolved with a great deal of violence.

Campaign takes a stand against counterfeiting

Fake fashion.

Geographical borders are becoming less relevant in fight against counterfeit goods with expansion of e-commerce

An association of 75 French luxury brands has launched a campaign against knockoff designer products, warning people in seven European countries of the high costs of fake goods to the industry — and potentially to buyers and sellers.

The anti-counterfeiting group, Comité Colbert, put up posters Wednesday in Paris featuring photos of fake phones, shades, watches and horse-skin handbags next to printed warnings of potential high fines and even jail time. One reads: "A bet on the wrong horse can be very expensive." Another advises: "Buy a fake Cartier, get a genuine criminal record."

Though it is a global phenomenon, counterfeiting is especially rampant in France, the capital of the luxury and cosmetics industries, which employs some 131,000 people, and is home to the world's premier fashion shows.

The new campaign aims to highlight serious criminal activity that the national anti-counterfeiting committee estimates costs French industry $7.46 billion US a year and between 30,000 and 40,000 jobs.

Though counterfeit sellers often target foreigners in Paris' tourist hot spots, the growth of fake goods on e-commerce websites is making it even more difficult to track, Comité Colbert's president, Elisabeth Ponsolle des Portes, said.

Baghdad. Series of bombings mark deadliest day in over a month

A series of bombings in the Iraqi capital struck a crowded restaurant, a police patrol and several other targets on Thursday, killing 12 people and wounding 29 in the bloodiest day in Baghdad in more than a month, police and hospital medics said.

Violence has fallen in Iraq since a wave of sectarian bloodshed in 2006 and 2007, but insurgents carry out frequent attacks on security forces and civilians in an attempt to undermine the Shiite-led government.

In northwest Baghdad, a parked car exploded outside a crowded restaurant in the Shiite neighbourhood of Shula, killing eight people and wounding 13, police officials said.

Naseer Ali, owner of a grocery shop in Shula, said he was about 150 metres from the restaurant when the blast went off. Ali said he and other witnesses rushed to help the victims until the ambulances arrived.

"I was in my shop when I heard a powerful explosion and everybody rushed to the explosion site," he said. "Part of the restaurant was damaged and the windows of the nearby shops were shattered. We saw several wounded people screaming for help."

Ali said he is worried the level of violence in Baghdad will return to what it was several years ago, in part because of the growing sectarian divide underlying a months-long paralysis of Iraq's national unity government.

Elsewhere in Baghdad, a parked car blew up near the home of Jamal-Din Mohammed, an adviser to Prime Minister Nouri al-Maliki, killing a civilian and wounding four people, including two guards protecting Mohammed's house.

Earlier Thursday, explosions hit two adjacent homes of Baghdad policemen in the predominantly Sunni neighbourhood of Amariyah, killing two and wounding nine people, among them three children.

Syria blames rebels for Houla massacre

Differing accounts. Witnesses, UN blame pro-Assad gunmen

Syria on Thursday blamed up to 800 rebel fighters for the massacre in central Syria last week that killed more than 100 people, nearly half of them children, in its most comprehensive explanation to date of the bloodshed.

The narrative starkly contradicted accounts of witnesses who blamed "shabiha" or the shadowy gunmen who operate on behalf of President Bashar Assad's regime. The UN also said it had strong suspicions those pro-regime gunmen were responsible for much of the carnage on Friday in a cluster of villages known as Houla.

Facing international outrage over the killings, Damascus launched its own investigation into the deaths and announced that special prayers for the victims would be held at mosques across the country on Friday. The UN chief warned of civil war and pleaded with the regime to stop its attacks.

At a news conference Thursday, Qassem Jamal Sulei-man, who headed the government's investigation into the massacre, categorically denied any regime role. He said hundreds of rebel gunmen carried out the slaughter after launching a co-ordinated attack on five security checkpoints.

The aim, he said, was to frame the government and to ignite sectarian strife in Syria.

U.S. House fails to approve new abortion ban

Sex selection. The bill, if passed, would have made it a federal crime to abort a fetus based on gender

The U.S. House on Thursday fell short in an effort to ban abortions based on the sex of the fetus as Republicans and Democrats made an election-year appeal for women's votes.

The legislation would have made it a federal crime to perform or force a woman to undergo a sex-based abortion, a practice most common in some Asian countries where families wanting sons abort female fetuses.

It was a rare social issue to reach the House floor in a year when the economy has dominated the political conversation, and Republicans, besieged by Democratic claims that they are waging a war on women, struck back by trying to depict the vote as a women's-rights

The vote

- The bill had little chance of becoming law. The Democratic-controlled Senate would likely have ignored it, and the House brought it up under a procedure requiring a two-thirds majority for passage. The vote was 246-168 — 30 votes short of that majority. Twenty Democrats voted for it, while seven Republicans opposed it.

issue.

"It is violence against women," said Rep. Chris Smith, a Republican, of abortions of female fetuses. "This is the real war on women."

Marriage act discriminates against gay couples: Court

A U.S. appeals court Thursday declared that the federal Defence of Marriage Act unconstitutionally denies federal benefits to married gay couples, a groundbreaking ruling all but certain to wind up before the U.S. Supreme Court.

The unanimous ruling said the 1996 law that defines marriage as a union between a man and a woman discriminates against gay couples because it doesn't give them the same rights and privileges as heterosexual couples.

The three-judge panel of the 1st U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals said its ruling wouldn't be enforced until the U.S. Supreme Court decides the case, meaning that same-sex married couples will not be eligible to receive the economic benefits denied by the law until the high court rules.

That's because the ruling only applies to states within the circuit. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Researchers make spinal cord injury breakthrough

Walking again. Swiss scientists find success by using spinal-nerve stimulation technique on rats and people

Scientists are working on treatments to help people with spinal cord injuries walk. Now there's a striking new demonstration of how one approach might work: Spinal-nerve stimulation helped rats in a Swiss lab overcome paralysis to walk and climb stairs.

That may sound impressive, but similar progress has been made in people, too. The difference this time is the particular technique used.

In the new experiment, reported on Friday's issue of the journal Science, researchers stimulated spinal-nerve circuits and used physical training. The stimulation was electrical current from implanted electrodes plus injections of a chemical mix.

To do the training, the rats were placed in a harness so that only their hind legs reached the ground. Then they were placed on a treadmill, which produced only reflexive stepping, and on stationary ground, where they had to choose to make their legs move if they wanted to reach a piece of chocolate.

They took their first voluntary steps about two to three weeks after the training began, the researchers said. The rats still needed the harness later to keep their balance.

The treatment produced an extensive rewiring in the brain and spinal cord, and the lead researcher said that more than 100 rats have regained walking ability to varying degrees.

"This kind of approach will not cure spinal-cord injury" but it might someday help some patients recover more ability to move around, said lead researcher Gregoire Courtine.

Dr. John McDonald, of the Krieger Institute, said the new paper would spur great interest among spinal-cord researchers, in part because the techniques it used could be readily applied to people. The electrical stimulation could be given through the skin rather than from implanted electrodes, he said.

But he and W. Dalton Dietrich, scientific director of the Miami Project to Cure Paralysis at the University of Miami, noted that the rats had been given a spinal injury that differs from what is normally seen in people, so more studies are needed. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Head-on hit. Galactic crash in cards for Earth

Don't worry about when the world as we know it might end. NASA has calculated that our entire Milky Way galaxy will crash into a neighbouring galaxy with a head-on hit — in four billion years.

Astronomers in a Thursday NASA news conference announced that observations from the Hubble Space Telescope detail a long-anticipated galactic smash-up. Astronomers had seen the Andromeda galaxy coming at us, but thought there was a chance that its sideways motion would make it miss or graze the Milky Way. Hubble readings say there's no chance of that.

"This is pretty violent as things go in the universe," said Roeland van der Marel, an astronomer with the Space Telescope Science Institute in Baltimore that operates Hubble. "It's like a bad car crash in galaxy-land."

Scientists say the sun and Earth should easily survive the galactic merger, but likely will be in a different place in the cosmos.

Canadians eliminated at Scripps spelling bee

Tense competition.

Mignon Tsai of Abbotsford and Jennifer Mong of St. John's tripped up during semifinal action in Maryland

Two Canadians were eliminated on Thursday from the Scripps National Spelling Bee.

Twelve-year-old Mignon Tsai of Abbotsford, B.C., was tripped up by the word "macropodid" during the nail-biter of a semifinal.

In the next round, Jennifer Mong of St. John's — after nailing the word "lymphopoiesis" earlier in the day — flubbed the spelling of "velon" by adding an "e" on the end, concluding her run at the famous spelling bee.

The girls were among 50 competitors to make it to the semifinals following two days of often tense competition that saw spelling-bee officials challenge them with progressively more difficult words as the contest proceeded.

Many of those words, with origins in foreign languages, would confound adult Mensa members, and yet most of the schoolchildren, including Tsai and Mong, approached the microphone with poise, confidence — and no small amount of courage amid the glare of television cameras and a time limit to spell their words.

Canadians have been a strong presence at the Scripps competition for years, and have had several close calls. Nate Gartke and Finola Hackett of Alberta were previous runners-up.

The winner of this year's spelling bee, 14-year-old Snighdha Nandipati of San Diego, Calif., will take home more than $40,000 US in cash and scholarship money.

This year's competition included schoolkids not just from the U.S. and Canada, but from the Bahamas, China, Ghana, Jamaica, Japan, New Zealand and South Korea.

Pakistan. Militant group denies links to doctor who helped U.S. hunt bin Laden

A Pakistani militant group has denied any links with the doctor who helped the U.S. track down Osama bin Laden, threatening Thursday to kill him for working with the Americans.

The statement by Lashkar-e-Islam was the latest twist in the case of Shakil Afridi, whose plight has angered Washington and opened up another crack in relations with Islamabad.

Afridi ran a vaccination campaign on behalf of the CIA as a way of collecting blood samples from bin Laden's family in their house in northwest Pakistan. Afridi was arrested soon after the May 2, 2011 American raid that killed the al-Qaida leader. Last week he was sentenced to 33 years in prison.

It was initially assumed Afridi had been convicted of crimes relating to his work with the CIA, but on Wednesday the court released its written verdict, which found Afridi guilty of assisting Lashkar-e-Islam, a brutal militant and criminal gang operating in Khyber tribal region, where Afridi worked.

Watercraft maker preparing to move assembly to Mexico

Quebec. 500 employees of the Valcourt plant will be affected when the company moves over the next 18 to 36 months

Bombardier Recreational Products Inc. says 500 Quebec employees will be affected by a decision to switch watercraft assembly to Mexico.

The move will take place over the next 18 to 36 months, the company said in a statement released Thursday.

The 500 employees affected at the Valcourt plant will be presented with options including retirement packages or positions within or outside of the company.

The privately held company said existing production capacity in Mexico will be expanded by transferring engines currently being manufactured in Juarez to a new plant.

The new facility is where the assembly of the watercraft will take place.

"Building a global multi-market business is an ongoing process," company president Jose Boisjoli said in the statement. "To remain a market leader, BRP needs to constantly challenge itself and adapt to

MyFord app to keep owners, cars connected

For electric-vehicle (EV) owners who can't get enough of their cars, the MyFord Mobile app will now let users remotely control their car settings and stay connected halfway across the world.

Car owners can control car temperature, seat warmers, radio stations and even start charging their electric vehicle's battery with their smartphones.

"It's such a unique opportunity that you could communicate with your car from anywhere in the world that it just made sense," said Mark van Tol, Ford Motor Company of Canada's communications manager.

MyFord Mobile uses an on-board wireless module that allows the car to communicate off-board through standard cellular technology.

And since electric cars are all about going green, so is the app.

It offers functions that are both fun and practical for its users. EV owners can track their driving practices and see how eco-friendly they are on the road. The app rates car owners from "zen" to "zippy" and offers figures to show how much money and CO2 emis-

Features

The app comes with a list of other features, like remotely unlocking and locking doors, using a built-in GPS system to locate the car, locating charging stations in the area, and much more.

For those concerned about conserving their battery life, MyFord Mobile's option of allowing users to preheat and cool their cars means that instead of draining the battery, they could instead use electricity from the grid as long as they're already plugged in.

Tropicana. Lawsuits slam 'all natural' claim

Orange-juice maker Tropicana markets its brand as fresh from the grove, but a series of lawsuits across the U.S. claim the company's juice is so heavily processed it shouldn't be called "natural."

In approximately 20 lawsuits lawyers claim the company adds chemically engineered "flavour packs" to its juice, making it taste the same year-round. On Thursday, lawyers came together in Washington to argue before a panel of judges about where the lawsuits should be heard as a group.

Tropicana declined to comment but said in a statement that it is committed to full compliance with labelling laws and to producing "great-tasting 100 per cent orange juice."

YOUR (BARBER'S) FIRED

THE LIST
Paul Sullivan
Metro

The world is having a very stressful week. All kinds of nerve-racking stuff going on, starting with:

1

Mr. Dahmer goes to Ottawa? Gay-porn star Luka Rocco Magnotta allegedly tortures kittens, slices up a naked man and sends the body parts in the mail to various places, including Parliament Hill. Yikes.

2

National shame. It's another Stanley Cup and, once again, no Canadian teams are involved. So, as we stand with our noses pressed to the glass, we ask: Who is Canada's team? The Los Angeles Kings or the New Jersey Devils?

3

Like, oops. On network TV, Kathie Lee Gifford congratulates Martin Short for his long, happy marriage. The only problem is, his wife died two years ago. Then she apologizes on Twitter, albeit to the wrong Twitter handle.

4

What's your kid doing today? A 16-year-old kid in Germany has solved a 300-year-old math puzzle that stumped Isaac Newton and everyone else since. Thanks to Shouryya Ray, there is now a way to calculate the path of a projectile under gravity and subject to air resistance. Well, it kept me up at night.

5

God saves the Queen, in perpetuity. Her Majesty's a pretty nice woman, and she'll be floating down the Thames in a barge on Sunday to mark the 60th year of her reign over us. No word on whether the corgis will follow in the royal dinghy.

6

Hair-brained theme. Donald Trump won't let it go. He still says Barack Obama wasn't born in the U.S., even though the president has released his detailed Hawaiian birth certificate. The question remains: What planet is The Donald from? And why doesn't it have decent barbers?

7

Speaking of outer space. The first private space flight is a success as the SpaceX Dragon splashes down in the Pacific. Next mission: Send The Donald back to Mars.

8

A New York-nanny state of mind. N.Y.C. Mayor Michael Bloomberg wants to ban any sugary drinks over 16 ounces across the five boroughs, because they're bad for you. Using that logic, he should ban Donald Trump. He's fired.

This just in: The European Union appears to be crumbling before our eyes. Spain, Italy, Greece and Ireland are seriously considering abandoning the euro and restoring the peseta, lira, drachma and punt, respectively. The Irish, at least, have it right.

Um, excuse me, Donald, do you have a birth certificate for that growth on your head? Looks like it might be extraterrestrial. GETTY IMAGES

Bullfighting

Matador (El Juli) on the horns

This was a scary moment for one of Spain's most celebrated bullfighters. Julian (El Juli) Lopez was thrown in the air and then gored in the stomach by a bull at a festival in the town of Aranjuez this week. After losing consciousness, Lopez returned to finish the fight and was carried off at the finish by spectators.

Bullfighting in Spain

- Pamplona. Home of the famous Running of the Bulls where townsfolk run ahead of bulls, which are then used in fights.
- Madrid. One of the most popular cities for bullfights. Spain's capital has two major venues, which can hold 20,000 spectators.
- Barcelona. Represents the modern distaste for bloodsports — it banned bullfighting in 2010.

Golden boy

The ringmaster, from the age of 9

Lopez, 29, has had a remarkable career. He was training with bulls at the age of nine and fought in Mexico at 14 to avoid Spain's law against underage matadors. He became the highest-paid bullfighter in history at 17 and has flourished since. Footage of his fights have appeared in Shakira's videos.

Comeback

"I took a beating but I'm fine, thanks for all your support it has made me better."

Matador Julian Lopez reassures his supporters on Twitter.

This was not El Juli's first scare in the bullring and he has become known for his swift recoveries. In 2010 he was hospitalized after being gored in the scrotum.

Famous fairy tale goes goth

Reel Guys

RICHARD
CROUSE AND
MARK BRESLIN

Snow White and The Huntsman. Charlize Theron's shrieking performance usurps Kristen Stewart's turn as Snow White

Richard: Chris, this movie plays like the love child of the Grimm Brothers and The Hobbit. It is dark in tone and in look with just a few hi ho ho's provided by the Seven Dwarfs. That'll be my last bad Snow White joke, I promise. The first hour is a gothic fairy tale, the second hour more an action movie, but through it all Theron's bug-eyed Grand Guignol performance remains constant. Was she too over the top, or just over the top?

Chris: One scream of rage would have been over the top. By the time she turned into a melting puddle of dying, tar-soaked crows, I realized that both the dark tone of the film and Charlize's shrieking vampire queen performance were more Hammer Horror than Walt Disney... and I was in deep, of course. But what did you think of Stewart's Snow White?

RC: K Stew is the movie's big draw, marquee wise, and while she holds down the fort, I found that unless she was on horseback, or staring down a troll, I wasn't that interested in her performance. The talky bits aren't nearly as interesting as the yelling bits (thanks to Charlize's unhinged performance) or the action sequences. Unfortunately, she is saddled with most of the dialogue, and it is the last interesting thing about the movie.

CA: Stewart was a fantastic Joan Jett. Not so much earth goddess/warrior queen but whatever, I forgave her slight, tomboyish presence when so many operatic visuals were ex-

Synopsis

In this twist on a familiar fairy tale, Charlize Theron is Ravenna, an evil queen so obsessed with being the fairest in the land she condemns the dead king's lovely daughter, Snow White (Kristen Stewart), to a lifetime of solitude and captivity. When the queen's mirror tells her that Ms. White will one day reclaim the throne, Ravenna does what any evil monarch would do. She decides to eat Snow's still beating heart, thereby ensuring immortality and the throne. Chris Alexander sits in for Mark Breslin this week.

ploding around her. Strangely, however, I found that some of my favourite moments in the film were the quiet ones; the sequences of technicolour fairy forests and character moments where — alarmingly — you actually empathized with Theron's soul-sucking monster. What do you think Stewart's TWI-hard fanbase will think?

RC: She couldn't muster the fanpires for The Runaways but this time around will be different, I think. Her version of Snow White has much in common with the elements that appeal to the Twilight fans. There's no werewolves or vampires, but there is true love, fantasy and even the sweeping crane landscape shots are reminiscent of her best-known films.

CA: Well, she certainly has a better shot at pleasing her fanbase with this lush gothic fantasy than her sparkly paramour Pattinson does getting a five-minute prostate exam in Cronenberg's Cosmopolis, that's for sure.... but we'll save that for another day.

Starbuck creators win prize

The two creators of Quebec's fertility comedy Starbuck have each won a $20,000 prize from Telefilm Canada. On Wednesday, director Ken Scott and his co-writer Martin Petit landed the 2011 Guichet d'Or award. The annual honour goes to the Canuck director and writer of a Canadian French-language feature film with the highest-grossing domestic box-office sales during the previous year. In 2011, Starbuck took in more than $3.5 million at the Canadian box office, according to Telefilm Canada. Steven Spielberg's DreamWorks Studios announced last month it's revamping the franco-phone film with a new script set in New York.

Comedy/Horror

Piranha 3DD

Director. John Gulager

Stars. Danielle Panabaker,
David Hasselhoff, Matt Bush

To be honest, Piranha 3DD doesn't take itself very seriously. And so I won't be excoriating some disparaging critical diagnosis or justifying any hopeful merit (for the record there are no merits). Just know that when the producers pitched this low-brow money-grab about a waterpark overrun with flesh-eating fish (need I say more?), they likely only had three words for potential investors: blood, boobs and 3D.

Drama

Crooked Arrows

Director. Steve Rash

Stars. Brandon Routh, Michael Hudson, Gil Birmingham

Sports movies by definition have a predetermined ending — the underdog team wins despite the odds, or loses the game, but wins on moral grounds. Despite this, Hollywood continues to churn the things out like they were Avengers' solo films. Crooked Arrows in no way deviates from this pattern — it literally lifts its plot points from the Mighty Ducks, replacing inner city kids playing hockey with first-nations kids playing lacrosse.

Comedy

Hysteria

Director. Tanya Wexler

Stars. Maggie Gyllenhaal, Hugh
Dancy, Jonathan Pryce

Set in nineteenth century London, Hysteria is a rom com about Mortimer Granville (Hugh Dancy), a young handsome doctor whose hand cramps led directly to the invention of the vibrator. As social commentary it's lightweight, and a movie about the invention of the tool that revolutionized sexuality should focus on that and not the predictable rom com love triangle. I expected more than a comedy of manners with an off-colour edge from the story. As such, this is a rental, not a night out.

Interpretation. Professor offers his opinions on some popular tales

Professor Jack Zipes, author of several books on the topic of fairy tales, including this year's release of The Irresistible Fairy Tale, explains the social issues raised by these stories.

Little Red Ridinghood: "This story raises the issue of rape and violation of a young woman. It raises the question of, who is responsible for the rape when it happens and how can women protect themselves or do they really want to be raped?"

Cinderella: "How do parents treat non-biological children? That question of course is still with us today."

Hansel and Gretel: "Here we have the issue of child abuse, child abandonment."

Beauty and the Beast: "Forcing or compelling a young woman ... into marrying the man who is 30 or 40 years older."

When it comes to Prometheus, Ridley Scott fights the geek fight

Prop war. Director talks about arguing over the specifics of space helmets and shoe laces for sci-fi horror flick

Metro World News in Hollywood

You would think that a director of Ridley Scott's stature would find it easier to get what he wants, especially when he's returning to his sci-fi horror roots with Prometheus. But you'd be wrong. As details of the technology within the film's story began to take shape, Scott admits he found himself going to the mat on more than one occasion.

"You think about everything, down to the shoe laces," Scott says. "We even had a big argument about the globular helmets. I was certain that I wanted the fully spherical glass helmet. If I'm in 2083 and I'm going into space, why would I design a helmet that has blind spots?"

And androids, by then, will apparently be indistinguishable from humans. But Scott, who's no stranger to androids thanks to the original Alien, wanted to approach the subject with care. "What was important was the story. There's nothing new about an android. That idea is 100 years old," he says, explaining how this film's android, played by Michael Fassbender, is deployed. "So then, embrace what it is.

By embracing it, he becomes that much more interesting because he isn't just part of the ship. He also becomes extremely useful during the story, as it evolves."

Getting technical

Fassbender on androids

A major component of the Alien universe — and of the viral marketing campaign leading up to Prometheus — are the incredibly lifelike android characters. This time out, X-Men: First Class star Michael Fassbender takes on the job as David, which he found to be an interesting challenge. "You want to play with as many of those human traits as possible. You're essentially trying to build a computer that has a physicality to it," he says.

Summer movies take over

We've made it through a dismal spring loaded with murderous teens, a massive John Carter flop and dreary vampires. Now it's time to enjoy the blockbusters that, we hope, are guaranteed to please.

HEIDI PATALANO
Metro News

The first half of the year is a notorious dumping ground for studio stinkers — save The Hunger Games, of course. We've suffered enough!

The Avengers was just a tasting of the treats in store over the next three months as things heat up.

First, we take a look at some of the most hotly anticipated films that we've been dying to see since well before the New Year.

June 8: Prometheus

We like to talk about Michael Fassbender quite a bit in this paper because he really is just that awesome. But the main attraction for the film in which he stars as Android David is much larger than just one actor. This highly anticipated film helmed by Alien director Ridley Scott shows what happens when humans in the future travel to a foreign planet to discover their origins.

June 22: Abraham Lincoln: Vampire Hunter

We're not sure how much a camp factor will come into play with this wacky idea of a film, considering serious Broadway veteran Benjamin Walker will play President Lincoln. But the plot summary really is that Abraham Lincoln decides to vanquish those vampires once he realizes they are planning to take over the U.S., so your guess is as good as ours.

July 3: The Amazing Spider-Man

Even though there have been a bazillion iterations of Spidey in the last several years, everyone's dying to get a look at this one, portrayed by The Social Network's Andrew Garfield and co-starring his real-life girlfriend Emma Stone as Gwen Stacy.

July 20: The Dark Knight Rises

The final installation of Christopher Nolan's brilliant imagining of Batman has a few tricks up its sleeve, if the spooky trailer is any indication. Tom Hardy is Bane, one of the nastiest villains the Dark Knight has ever encountered. And then there's Anne Hathaway slinking around as the seductively dangerous Selina Kyle.

August 3: The Bourne Legacy

Can Jeremy Renner fill the shoes of Matt Damon in the Bourne series? Starring as Aaron Cross, Renner's first major starring role has a man who must deal with the consequences of Jason Bourne's actions from where The Bourne Ultimatum left off.

Same old song

Music. Do stars get tired of their own hit tunes? Most won't admit it, but sometimes they're just really over it

New York indie-pop outfit Fun set the world on fire with the No. 1 single We Are Young. But months after it topped the charts, no one would blame the trio if the tune had them feeling a little burnt out.

After all, even those among us who celebrated the song's ceaselessly contagious chorus ("set the world on FI-YA!") is a hook hefty enough to reel in a white whale) might have tired of the track once it achieved supermarket-stereo ubiquity.

So how would you feel if you performed the song every single day?

For their part, however, the members of Fun say they're still having a ball each and every time they take the stage to perform their signature hit.

"That'd be really dumb on our part to get tired of it," frontman Nate Ruess said during a recent interview.

"Watching the way people react (when we play it) makes it hard to get tired of it," added guitarist Jack Antonoff.

But of course, they are young.

While they'll rarely admit it publicly, many artists reluctantly concede that over time, performing their biggest hits night in, night out can wind up feeling like a chore. And the reasons for that weariness are numerous.

Sometimes, the sentiment

New York indie-pop outfit Fun set the world on fire with the No. 1 single We Are Young — but the band says it's still a riot to play. CHRIS YOUNG/THE CANADIAN PRESS

The medley method

- There is a standby for artists who can't stomach one of their own tunes but still want to give the audience a taste: the medley.
- That was the strategy adopted by genre-hopping Minneapolis pop legend Prince during a recent three-hour marathon at Toronto's Air Canada Centre, when he combined truncated versions of hits including Nothing Compares 2 U, 1999 and Little Red Corvette into crowd-pleasing mega-mixes.

Indeed, many music fans are angry at the notion of highly paid musicians refusing to play the songs they're known for.

For a fan forking out hundreds of dollars for a prime seat, parking and concessions for what could be a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity to see a favourite artist, is it too much to ask for said artist to endure a few minutes of boredom to send thousands home happy?

"I just think it's selfish to not play those songs that your career was built on, that people supported you through," Canadian songwriter Jann Arden has said.

"If that's what some of these younger acts want to do, let them go cut their own throats. I think it's inexperience, I think it's selfish, self-serving, narcissistic and stupid."

Play it again. MMMBop, Hanson not gonna shut up

If there was ever a group with a rightful claim on banishing a major hit to the past, it might be the former teenybop sibling outfit Hanson.

MMMBop went to No. 1 in 12 countries in 1997. The video featured the pubescent trio frolicking in oversized clothes over terrible greenscreen. The song was as ubiquitous in the '90s as flannel, Pogs and slap bracelets, so insidiously infectious that McAfee might have made a fortune scrubbing the tune from its unwitting victims' brains.

And yet, the Oklahoma trio still doggedly performs MMMBop on nearly every tour stop — impossibly high notes be damned. In part, they want to satisfy their fans. But more than that, the trio is deeply proud that a song they wrote 15 years ago still resonates.

"It's a little bit like a runner not wanting to wear their gold medals," said singer Taylor Hanson. "For us, we wear the gold medals with pride because we don't see them as something that is relegated to the past."

THE CANADIAN PRESS

Enough already!

Former Barenaked Ladies singer Steven Page said his old band similarly rested early hits like If I Had $1,000,000. "We knew that if we weren't feeling it at all, that it would feel like we were sleep-walking through it."

Our Lady Peace frontman Raine Maida says his band eliminated some songs from their live performances entirely. "There's some songs we'll just never play — they just don't resonate with us anymore," said Maida recently.

Blue Rodeo's Jim Cuddy grew tired of performing the band's breakthrough Try. "I got sick of that song so bad for a while. After about five years, I went: 'Oh my God.'"

"I've sang Zombie so many times that I actually feel like a zombie," Cranberries singer Dolores O'Riordan has joked, referencing the band's impossible-to-kill 1994 single.

Summer
album
previewSOUND
CHECKAlan Cross
scene@metronews.ca

We're now well into the summer album release season. Here's what's on the horizon this month:

Insane Clown Posse/The Mighty Death Pop! (Out now): The Juggalos will be pleased with what Violent J and Shaggy 2 Dope have turned in for their 12th album. Still no clue insight into how magnets work, however.

Public Image, Ltd/This Is PiL (Out now): Johnny Lydon's crew has just released their first album in 20 years and it's a DIY effort on their own label. Good for the contrarian in all of us.

Beach Boys/That's Why God Made the Radio (Tuesday): This is album 29 and coincides with the band's 50th anniversary. It's also the first album to feature original material in 20 years. Brian Wilson says he was going for a Pet Sounds sound for the record.

Japandroids/Celebration Rock (Tuesday): Will Vancouver's Brian King and David Prowse be 2012's break-out two-piece act? The indie crowds have been all over the first single, The House That Heaven Built. Watch out, Black Keys.

Rush/Clockwork Angels (June 12): Finally! The first song from this album was released on June 1, 2010. Another track, BU2B, was a nightly part of the set list on the last Rush tour. Bonus feature: Sci-fi novelist Kevin J. Anderson is turning the album into a book involving steam-punk, anarchists, alchemy and The Watchmaker who controls everything.

Wintersleep/Hello Hum (June 12): There's much anticipation about the Halifax band's fifth album. Hey, Paul McCartney is a fan.

Smashing Pumpkins/Oceania (June 19): After attempting and abandoning a new way of releasing music with his Teargarden by Kaleidoscope project, Billy Corgan returns to a traditional album. But he says that Oceania is really "an album within an album." What?

Fiona Apple/The Idler Wheel is Wiser than the Driver of the Screw, and Whipping Cords Will Serve You More Than Ropes Will Ever Do (June 26): Yes, that's what it's called. At least the title is shorter than her 1999 album. Look it up.

Linkin Park/Living Things (June 26): Well more a year in the making, their fifth album is said to deliver more of what's helped them sell 50 million records so far.

The Offspring/Days Go By (June 26): After a four-year break the Offspring are back with a Bob Rock-produced record. Love the Dr. Strangelove closer: Slim Pickens Does the Right Thing and Rides the Bomb to Hell.

All that Heaven will allow

The Walkmen.

Metro chats to the band's singer about their latest release, fatherhood and more

scene@metronews.ca

Hamilton Leithauser needs a jumpstart. The singer for the Walkmen says his 2000 Ford Escape is an otherwise reliable vehicle, but he left his hazard lights on while visiting a friend and the battery died.

But if Heaven — the new Walkmen album that came out on May 29 — does as well as it seems like it was designed to do, he might not have to be concerned about his Ford for much longer.

Beginning as a buzz band that appeared to be unwillingly lumped in with NYC's leather-clad class of 2002, the band have persevered and watched their cult of believers expand with each of their six original releases.

With Heaven, the band seems to be reaching for something more accessible, something that could even lead to Leithauser buying a rock star car like a Bentley.

The last time we spoke we were talking about who the best contemporary band in America was, and I remember you saying it would be a different world if the Walkmen were the biggest contemporary American band. Now that's true.

But you guys definitely

seem like you're aiming for something big with this album.

I think we were happy to make a big record, which is not something we always want to do. By "big" I mean that I hope it's accessible and I hope that people will like it, but I mean more that it's got big songs and big dynamics and big sounds, and that it's really bombastic. But that wasn't even the plan.

How often does that hap- pen with you guys? Every time.

Really?

Well, every time we've tried to plan, it just ends up pigeonholing us. We just have such trouble writing songs that you sort of take what you can get when you like it.

I mean, you work and work and work, but when you say, 'OK, we're going to write all slow songs,' then that's just another limitation that makes it harder. It's hard enough.

How do you divide the songwriting duties?

Me and Walt (Martin, bassist and keyboardist) and Paul (Maroon, guitarist) write all of the stuff, basically.

This is the first album where you've ever featured a song where it's just your voice and a guitar. ...

Yeah. We were doing that live for a while and that was kind of weird because everybody just walks off the stage and I'm just up there alone. I mean, we're just trying for dynamics. We have the one, Line By Line, which is me and Paul. It's nice to try to vary it up when we can.

In the recording process, did you try these songs out with additional instruments?

On Line By Line, I think we did a full-band version of that too. I think we did an acoustic version of it also, and it just wasn't happening for one reason or another.

You guys all have kids now, right?

We do. Otis is the oldest. He's seven. Mine is the youngest, she's 13 months.

And you're a married man now too, right?

Yeah, we all are. That's a big difference.

Does your wife ever say, "What the hell? Why are you so bummed out in this song?"

(Laughs.) She's actually asked me that exact same question before, like, "Why don't you just cheer up?"

The world, according to Jane Fonda

JANE FONDA/GETTY IMAGES

EHRBAR

Metro World News in Hollywood

The always outspoken 74-year-old takes on an idealistic aging hippie in her new film, Peace, Love and Misunderstanding.

But Fonda insists that being a hippie was a completely foreign experience for her.

That wasn't all she let us in on.

1. The 1960s

"I lived in France during the 1960s, so my view of the '60s is a more global view. It was a time of tremendous transition for America, but for the world as well. And it wasn't just because of the Vietnam War or the Pill. I'm not a sociologist, so I don't know why it was that almost everywhere in the world there was tumult, but it was. The '60s was about discord and generational splits. When I became an activist in 1970, I missed the '60s. I never was a hippie or anything. I recognize the importance of that decade, having had one leg in the '50s — which I think has been much more idealized as a time of, you know, families were together and everything was well..."

2. She can't stress enough the importance of the Internet

"The technological stuff has changed everything. We can see it overseas even more, with the Arab Spring and so forth. I never used a computer until I was 58. I was married to Ted Turner, and he threw it across the room. He still doesn't use one. I started blogging at 71. Since it was all new to me, suddenly my life became very immediate. I was worried about blogging because I study Zen Buddhism and I meditate and I believe in being in the moment, and this is going to keep me from being in the moment. But what I discovered was that it helped me be in the moment."

3. Kids today don't protest the way they used to

"One of the things that's really interesting is there's no leader (in the Occupy movement).

During the Vietnam War, there were all these organization and they all had leaders — most of them men. I married one. And now there isn't and people get really disturbed by that, but it's really what's so beautiful about it.

It's not ideological, you can't quite get a grip on it, but it's making a difference. Just like that demonstration in Seattle when the WTO met up there. That was in some ways more significant than anything that happened in the '60s."

4. Papa don't preach: She didn't actually learn anything about acting from her dad

"I never could get him to talk to me about acting, ever. I produced On Golden Pond for him, and after our big scene together I still couldn't get him to talk to me about acting. I learned about life from watching his movies — like Grapes of Wrath and 12 Angry Men. It's what made me who I am, the roles he played. I am my dad's daughter and I look like him in many ways, and I'm sure there's things that other people see that I don't. In some ways, I learned more from Katharine Hepburn than my dad."

5. On impressing Katharine Hepburn

"The first thing she ever said to me was, 'I don't like you.' Take the backflip [scene in On Golden Pond]. I had no intention of doing the backflip, so they had a stunt double all set up, and then Hepburn said to me, 'Are you going to do the backflip?' I thought 'oh God, I'm going to have to do it.' My dad couldn't have cared less if I did the backflip myself, but it mattered to her. It took me a month and a half to learn. I'd go out on the raft and do it over and over and over. Finally I made it one day, and I crawled out on the shore and she'd been hiding in the bushes, watching. She came over to me and she said, 'You've taught me to respect you.'"

From Lord of the Rings to defender of The Grid

Tron: Uprising. Elijah Wood steps into a dangerous virtual world in new Disney live action TV series

NED EHRBAR
Metro World News in Hollywood

Elijah Wood is jumping feet first into the world of animated series television with Tron: Uprising, a new series that takes place in the time between 1982's Tron and 2010's Tron: Legacy. Of course, it's not necessarily new territory for the actor, who's popped up as a voice in films, TV and video games in the past.

"Over the last number of years, I'm no stranger to voice work in animation, so I'm used to it," Wood says. "But getting a chance to work within the context of a universe I was already familiar with was really fun. It just gave the whole experience a more special quality, I think."

The familiar universe of Tron: Uprising also meant more than just the usual voiceover work, though: "The character happens to be extremely physical, so there's a lot of me standing in front of a microphone, punching and kicking the air, and making myself sound like I'm in all sorts of intense physical scenarios, which is pretty hilarious," Wood says. "I'm sure there's some footage of me, standing there looking like an idiot."

Finding the right voice for Beck was easy, as it turns out, since the show's producers really just wanted Wood. "It was determined right away that it would be my own voice," he says, though he cautions that with secret identities and hush-hush rebellions on the menu, it's never that simple.

"When the character is Tron, or The Renegade, we do change his voice a little bit," Wood explains. "Digitally, they mess with his voice, and I also give it a gravity that Beck doesn't have in his normal Beck mode. The character is split between the two, in a way. Some of those more Tron-Renegade moments definitely have a depth and a gravity to them, and that's fun. It's fun to play around with all of that."

Virtual wars

Tron: Uprising premieres June 23 on Disney XD.

- The plot. Wood plays Beck, a young program who leads a revolution inside the computer world of The Grid.

While Tron: Uprising and his live-action TV series, Wilfred, have kept him busy — along with several film projects — Wood is keeping an open mind when it comes to what's next. "I don't know that I'm ever looking for anything, in particular," Wood admits.

"I'm always intrigued by new challenges and things that I've never done before and new experiences. It sounds so simple, but the primary interest is just something that's good and instills within me some kind of gut feeling that feels like something that I'm passionate and excited about, and there can be multiple variables that can instill that. But, I'm always just looking to do things that I've never done before, primarily."

These femme fatales 'don't need a man'

Magic City. Sexy cast dishes on their characters as drama reaches season finale

"It's funny that we're doing this together," says Dominik Garcia-Lorido, who for this interview is joined by her Magic City co-stars Kelly Lynch and Elena Satine. She explains: "Our characters are the three women on the show who don't need a man!"

She has a point. On this Starz drama series set in fast-living 1959 Miami Beach, the other fabulous femmes are married: Vera (played by Olga Kurylenko) is happily wed to hotel magnate Ike Evans (Jeffrey Dean Morgan), while Lily (Jessica Marais) is joined in stormy matrimony with mob boss Ben Diamond (Danny Huston).

No such entanglements for this independent threesome, though their differences from one another are as marked as anything they have in common.

On Magic City, whose season finale airs Friday at 10 p.m. EDT, Mercedes Lazaro (played by Garcia-Lorido) is working part-time as a housekeeper at the Miramar Playa, the luxurious hotel built by Ike Evans, while she trains to be a Pan Am stewardess.

"When I first heard Cuban maid I was so running in the other direction," says Garcia-Lorido, who, as the daughter of actor Andy Garcia, is herself of Cuban descent. "But while, back then, a Cuban-Catholic girl of 21 would probably have been married with kids, this girl is about to work for Pan Am and travel the world."

Then love catches her off-guard in the form of unexpected romance with her childhood friend — and younger son of

Magic City's cast poses at the series premiere. EVAN AGOSTINI/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Ike — Danny Evans (played by Christian Cooke). But that doesn't mean she automatically abandons her dreams. In this week's episode, she's ready to fly as she proudly models her Pan Am uniform for Danny.

"I had a very intense first love, so I had a desire to tell Mercedes' story," confides Garcia-Lorido (whose films include The Last Goodbye and City Island).

Lynch's character, Meg Banck, is the classy, moneyed older sister of Ike's deceased first wife whose bankroll could spring Ike from the grip of Ben, aka "the Butcher," his thuggish silent partner.

"Because of Meg's extreme wealth, she doesn't need a man for any reason other than for fun or distraction," says Lynch (whose credits include Drugstore Cowboy, Desperate Hours and the series The L Word). "But Meg does have that human need — which is family," and that means rapprochement with Ike, her brother-in-law, from whom she's been estranged for several years.

Finally, Judi Silver (Satine) is a high-priced escort often found in the Miramar Playa's posh Atlantis Lounge — and lately found in jeopardy thanks to the company she keeps.

"I'm always attracted to playing broken, damaged people," says Marais. "I knew Judi wasn't going to just be this happy-go-lucky girl who's a hooker for fun. She's the life of the party, but underneath lies some real darkness for her."

CTV has new shows lined up

Television. CTV programming schedule features Charlie Sheen's TV comeback and no shortage of gritty drama

Kevin Bacon's gritty FBI drama, Charlie Sheen's return to television, Hayden Panettiere's country music soap and a final season of Flashpoint anchor CTV and CTV Two's upcoming lineups.

Bell Media says it's bolstering its twin TV schedules with a mix of weighty dramas and light laughers, although much of the new material won't be seen until 2013.

Just four programmes — amounting to 2.5 hours of new material — are being added to CTV's fall schedule, while sister station CTV Two is getting three new dramas.

CTV's additions include three comedies: Anger Management, in which Sheen plays an unconventional therapist; The New Normal, about two gay men who enlist a surrogate baby mama; and The Neighbors, with Jamie Gertz and Lenny Venito as a couple who move to a gated community where aliens live in disguise.

The channel's sole new drama is The Mob Doctor, with Jordana Spiro as a young surgeon split between her promising medical career and a lifelong debt to Chicago's Southside mob.

CTV Two's new dramas include: Nashville, with Connie Britton as a music icon struggling to maintain her career against an ambitious newcomer played by Panettiere; Arrow, with Canadian Stephen Amell as a vigilante superhero known by day as billionaire industrialist Oliver Queen; and Emily Owens, M.D., about a young surgical intern who learns that working in a hospital is no different than the dynamics of high school.

Crouching Tiger, Hidden Dragon star accused of prostitution

Crouching Tiger, Hidden Dragon star Zhang Ziyi has been accused of earning $110 million by prostituting herself to Chinese government officials and businessmen, according to the Daily Mail. The unsubstantiated claims in Chinese media detail the actress accepting large sums of money from various Beijing officials between 2007 and 2011, with one businessman reportedly

Ashton Kutcher and Demi Moore

Ashton and Demi keep it cool in public

Tensions seem to have eased between divorcing couple Demi Moore and Ashton Kutcher, who were spotted together at the birthday party for a Kabalah instructor, according to People magazine. "They were friendly," a source tells People magazine of the former couple, who arrived separately. "Ashton got up at one point and grabbed coffee in a paper cup for Demi, and they smiled a few times during the program at each other. They seemed to get along and feel comfortable." And apparently that's as good as it's going to get, says another source.

THE WORD

Monica Weymouth

Drew Barrymore is all set to walk down the aisle with fiancé Will Kopelman Saturday. On Wednesday, the actress was spotted at the Chanel store in Beverly Hills for her final wedding dress fitting.

Along for support was Charlie's Angels costar Cameron Diaz who — in addition to being the kind of girl we imagine has an emergency mini bar in her purse — is a close friend of the couple, and was even clued in before the proposal.

"I knew Drew was getting married before she did!" she tells InStyle UK.

As for Drew, she's apparently overlooked the fact that Cameron is all glowing blonde legs and has given her a front row seat Saturday. "Drew has been leaning on Cameron a lot," a friend tells Us Weekly. "Cameron has been very involved."

Is it just us, or have we seen this movie before? Cameron's going to be late and put her shoes on as she runs down the aisle. Drew's going to wear flowers in her hair and charmingly stumble through her vows while biting her lip. Someone's saucy great aunt should probably feel up a groomsman played by Andy Samberg.

We'll check back on Monday, Drew — with the big box of Sno Caps.

Mennonite cooking goes high tech

Old Order Mennonite cooking meets modern technology with a new app of Edna Staebler's Food That Really Smecks cookbook. Staebler's hugely successful cookbook extolled the cuisine and lifestyle of Old Order Mennonites. The book was originally published in 1968 and became a classic, selling tens of thousands of copies. New material on the app includes photos and videos of Staebler and the Waterloo Region countryside. Recipes are searchable and users can upload photos and recipe suggestions that will be shared with all users — just like your grandmother's scribbles in the margins of the family cookbook. ## Beer and iced tea?

LIQUID ASSETS
Peter Rockwell
@therealwineguy
peterrockwell@eastlink.ca

I've never been one to mess with a good thing, especially when it comes to booze. So for me the blend of hops, yeast, water and grain that defines beer is pretty much perfection.

And while the description of beer includes dozens upon dozens of different varieties that come by their taste profiles naturally, the trend toward flavoured brews is taking the industry by storm.

Beer needs them. Sales have seen better days, and industry innovation seems inspired by 1812 rather than 2012, with old school English-style ales the darlings of the aficionado set.

That's what's fun about Coors Light Iced T (12 x 355 ml, $20.31 - $24.99). On the surface it sounds like a mad attempt to attract a summertime audience with a Franken-blend of two totally foreign liquids.

The good news is that in the glass it tastes just like iced tea without losing the subtle malty expression of the suds — and it's a light beer.

This is the first time the Coors Light brand has been extended outside its singular universe and the pitch hits a solid home run.

Fire up the grill for easy summer veggies

Grilled Vegetable Napoleons. Lazy summer days are too precious to waste in front of a hot stove

1. Preheat barbecue and set on low. Brush vegetables with olive oil, season with salt and pepper, and grill slowly until tender, turning once.

2. Transfer vegetables to a tray, arranging them in a single layer, and cover tightly with plastic wrap. The vegetables may be grilled a day in advance and refrigerated after cooling. Bring the vegetables back to room temperature before proceeding.

3. Stir together the ricotta, thyme, salt and pepper in a small bowl. Place one slice of eggplant on a lightly oiled grill sheet or foil pan. Spread 1 tablespoon of the ricotta mixture over the eggplant. Cover with 2 slices of zucchini, 1 slice of onion, 1 slice of mozzarella, 1 slice of tomato, 2 slices of zucchini and 1 slice of onion. Spread 1 tablespoon of the ricotta mixture over the onion and top with another slice of eggplant.

Repeat this procedure with the remaining vegetables to make 5 more stacks.

4. Insert a wooden skewer through the centre of each stack to create a hole from top to bottom. Remove the bottom leaves from each rosemary sprig, leaving one inch of leaves on the top. Insert 1 sprig into the centre hole in each napoleon and return to the barbecue.

5. Heat for about 10 minutes on low, or until mozzarella is melted and vegetables are warmed through.

NEWS CANADA/BROILINGBBQ.COM

Ingredients

- 1/2 cup olive oil
- 1 large eggplant, cut in 12 slices (1/3" thick)
- 3 medium zucchinis, cut in 24 slices (1/4" thick)
- 3 large tomatoes, cut in 6 slices (1/3" thick)
- 3 medium red onions, cut in 12 slices (1/3" thick)
- 3/4 cup ricotta cheese
- Salt and pepper to taste
- 2 tsp fresh thyme, chopped
- 1/2 lb mozzarella cheese, sliced 1/4" thick
- 6 sprigs fresh rosemary

Kick-start your tomatoes into high gear

Perfect as an appetizer or side dish for your grilled steak, this delicious recipe for Mozzarellissima Grilled Stuffed Tomatoes is sure to be a hit.

1. Cut a slice of approximately 1 cm off the top of each tomato. With a small knife, cut the inside of the fleshy part of the tomato (do not cut through the bottom). Using a spoon, remove the inside of the tomatoes, leaving about 1 cm of flesh attached to skin. Discard the seeds and juice.

2. Lightly salt the inside of the tomatoes; place them with the open sides downwards on a plate covered with paper towels.

3. Cut zucchini lengthwise into 4 slices. Cut the pepper in half and remove the inside. Also cut the half onion in two. Brush vegetables with olive oil and sprinkle with salt, and cook for 8 to 10 minutes on direct medium heat until they are tender. Remove vegetables from heat.

4. Once cooled, chop the zucchini, onion and pepper into small pieces. Add the mint and a drizzle of olive oil to the vegetables. Mix and season to taste.

5. Stuff the tomatoes with the vegetable mixture and top with the Mozzarellissima. Place on barbecue over medium indirect heat, until cheese is melted and vegetables are heated through (approximately 5 to 6 minutes).

Ingredients

- 4 large ripe tomatoes
- Salt and freshly ground pepper, to taste
- 1 zucchini
- 1 yellow pepper
- 1/2 large red onion
- Olive oil, to taste
- Small handful fresh mint, finely chopped
- 3/4 cup (175 ml) Saputo Mozzarellissima cheese, shredded

Flames hitch their wagon to Hartley

NHL. New coach elects to join Calgary over Montreal Canadiens

Bob Hartley is back in the NHL. What's surprising is it's with the Calgary Flames.

The Montreal Canadiens seemed a likely destination for the Stanley Cup winner because of Hartley's Franco-Ontarian roots. Hartley was in discussions with the Canadiens and some pundits had already made his arrival in Montreal a foregone conclusion.

But the 51-year-old from Hawkesbury, Ont., has signed a three-year contract to coach the Flames, a stalled franchise that hasn't made the playoffs in three years.

He replaces Brent Sutter behind bench after Sutter and the Flame parted ways in April. Hartley is Calgary's fifth coach since the 2004-05 lockout.

The Flames narrowly missed the playoffs under Sutter three years in a row, finishing ninth in the Western Conference this past season at 37-29-16.

"One of the teams in the Stanley Cup finals, the L.A. Kings, just finished five points ahead of the Calgary Flames," Hartley said. "It's just to show you the difference between being a Stanley Cup winner and a non-playoff team is very, very slim.

"There's special expectations that come with a Canadian market.... I was very fortunate to win a Stanley Cup with Colorado and that's the kind of attitude I want to bring to this dressing room.

"I can promise you and I can promise the fans that we will not only give you entertaining hockey, but we will make sure that the Calgary Flames are a top team in the National Hockey League."

Hartley and Flames general manager Jay Feaster have a close relationship from their days together with the AHL's Hershey Bears. The two men won a Calder Cup together in 1997 before embarking on their respective NHL careers.

Hartley is the godfather of Feaster's son Ryan.

"We've always stayed in touch," Hartley said.

He has experience and a track record of success. Hartley coached for a decade in the NHL with both the Colorado Avalanche and the Atlanta Thrashers and won a Stanley Cup in 2001 with the Avs.

"He's coached Patrick Roy, he's coached Joe Sakic, he's coached Peter Forsberg, he's coached (Ilya) Kovalchuk in Atlanta," Feaster pointed out. "He's coached a lot of high-profile players. I think that is a plus for us." THE CANADIAN PRESS

"I'm not concerned at all"

Boston Celtics shooting guard Ray Allen on Thursday.

The Eastern Conference final shifts to Boston on Friday night for Game 3, with the Heat holding a 2-0 lead after staving off perhaps the Celtics' best shot with a 115-111 overtime victory on Wednesday.

NBA. Spurs' streak ends with thud in OKC

Kevin Durant scored 22 points, Thabo Sefolosha set playoff career-bests with 19 points and six steals, and the Oklahoma City Thunder snapped San Antonio's 20-game winning streak by beating the Spurs 102-82 in Game 3 of the Western Conference finals on Thursday night.

Oklahoma City closed its series deficit to 2-1 and will host Game 4 on Saturday night.

Sefolosha threw a wrench in the Spurs' well-oiled offence at the start, getting four steals in the first three minutes. The Spurs ended up committing a post-season-worst 21 turnovers and scoring their fewest points all season.

Tony Parker and Stephen Jackson led the Spurs with 16 points apiece. Tim Duncan had 11 points on five-for-15 shooting, taking 11 of San Antonio's first 25 shots as the offence went through the all-star centre instead of Parker. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Horoscope

♈ Aries | March 21 - April 20.

You will surprise people today with your reasonable behaviour.

♉ Taurus | April 21 - May 21.

Focus on what you enjoy and don't worry about whether it is an efficient use of your time and energy.

♊ Gemini | May 22 - June 20.

With both Venus and Mercury moving through your sign you will know instinctively what is the right thing to do.

♋ Cancer | June 21 - July 22.

You have so much to look forward to. So why the glum face? By the middle of next week you'll be smiling again.

♌ Leo | July 23 - Aug. 22.

Relationships will be a lot of fun over the next few days.

♍ Virgo | Aug. 23 - Sept. 22.

You will charm everyone you meet today – and if you meet important people such as employers and senior colleagues you could even earn yourself a pay rise or a promotion, or both.

♎ Libra | Sept. 23 - Oct. 22. You only have to put a name to your desires to see them fulfilled.

♏ Scorpio | Oct. 23 - Nov. 21.

A positive link between mind planet Mercury and Venus, planet of harmony, will bring a respite from your worries and woes.

♐ Sagittarius | Nov. 22 - Dec. 21.

Relationships will be pleasant today, which is a huge relief after the ups and downs of recent weeks.

♑ Capricorn | Dec. 22 - Jan. 20.

If you are having problems, don't suffer in silence: let those around you know you need assistance.

♒ Aquarius | Jan. 21 - Feb. 18.

Use your powers of communication to let others know why you are unhappy with certain situations. But don't talk down to them or blame them for the mess.

♓ Pisces | Feb. 19 - March 20.

Set aside a fixed time for your work and a fixed time for having fun. It does not have to be one or the other: if you plan things sensibly you can have your cake and eat it too.
